A map of Great Britain showing the distribution of 100 sampling sites. The sites are marked with black dots. The map includes the outlines of the British Isles, with the main landmass of Great Britain and the smaller islands of Ireland, the Shetlands, Orkney, and Hebrides. The sampling sites are concentrated in the central and southern regions of England, with a few sites in Scotland and Wales. The distribution is more dense in the south-east and south-west of England, and more sparse in the north and west.
